Contractors and consultants setting up a limited company can benefit from a number of tax-efficient perks. One of these is the ability to pay a combination of salary and dividends – reducing the amount of Income Tax and National Insurance charged.

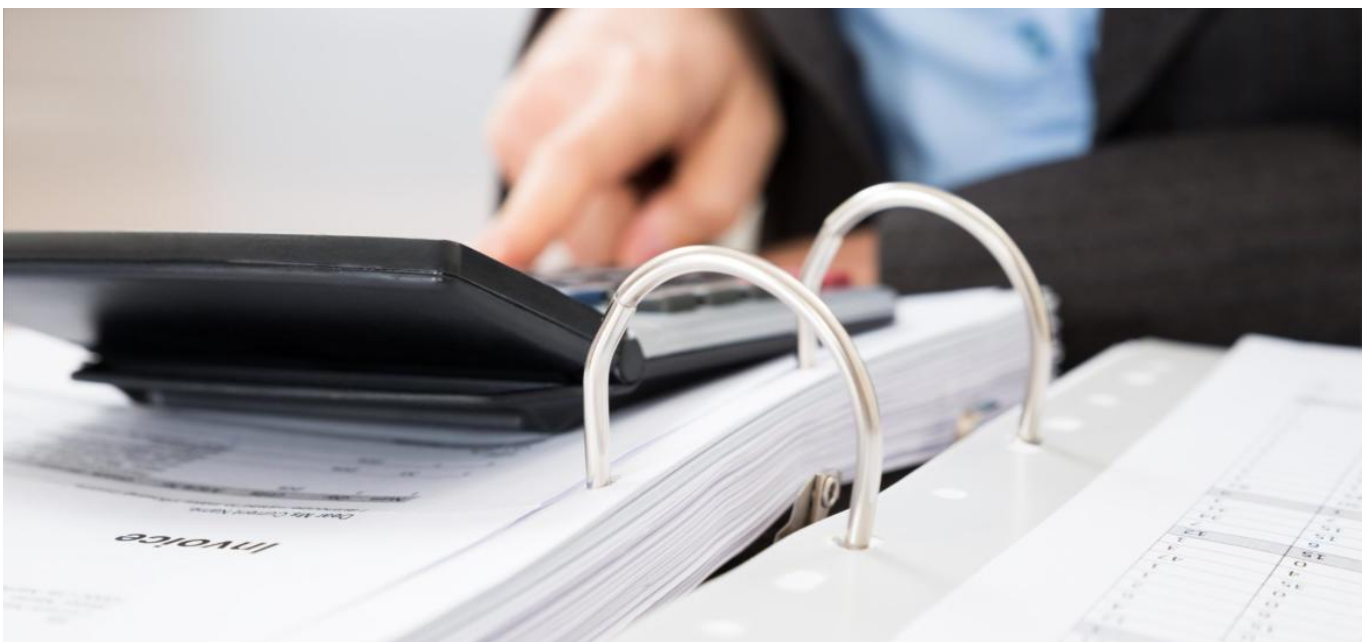

Employees of a limited company can also register for the flat rate VAT scheme, which allows them to lawfully retain some of the tax charged to clients – instead of sending it all to HMRC.

Thebes Management Accountants provides specialist accounting support to contractors working through limited companies. Whatever your work pattern, whether it's 12-hour days or working alternate weekends, providing your services through your own limited company offers great flexibility and benefits. As a limited company director you can pay yourself a combination of salary and dividends – meaning that operating as a limited entity is one of the most tax-efficient ways to work for yourself. In fact, you could earn up to 18% more by choosing limited instead of umbrella.

Understandably, setting up your own limited company can seem a bit daunting. However, the experts at Thebes Management Accountants will be with you all the way, taking the majority of the responsibility off your shoulders, and most of the paperwork off your desk; and because they're vastly experienced in providing accounting support, you can feel safe in the knowledge you'll always be 100% HMRC compliant.

Our accounts practitioner is CIMA qualified and has been in the accountancy profession for more than 17 years. Thebes Management Accountants' team is here to assist you in self-billing invoicing, book-keeping, payroll, accounts and taxes, for a competitive fee. Anyone with an umbrella company is also welcome to receive our accountancy services by changing their status, which Thebes Management Accountants can help you undertake.

If you set up a limited company, you can benefit from a number of tax-efficient perks. Please contact Thebes Management Accountants on 01908 303 670 for more information.
